Global Digital Art Prize Exhibition

Nanyang Technological University, Singapore (NTU Singapore) has announced the winners of the inaugural NTU Singapore Global Digital Art Prize, a biennial international competition designed to recognise outstanding creativity in art, design and cultural heritage that makes significant use of digital tools in its creation.

Berlin-based Italian media artist Marco Barotti successfully beat over 440 other entries to win the first prize of S$25,000 (US$18,230) in the Professional (International) category, while NTU fresh graduate Bao Songyu wins the top prize of $10,000 (US$7,290) in the Students (Singapore) category.

The exhibition of the 14 winning and shortlisted works are on display from 11 October to 30 November.
Admission is free.

Venue: NTU ADM Gallery, at the School of Art, Design & Media, 81 Nanyang Dr, Singapore 637458

When: 11 Oct - 30 Nov 2019,

SAGG

By: NTU - Nanyang Technological University

By: NTU - Nanyang Technological University