

THE STRAITS TIMES

Alumnus gifts NTU $1 million towards scholarship and bursary fund

NTU alumnus Steven Lim decided to launch the scholarship and bursary fund to help deserving students overcome financial obstacles to success. ST PHOTO: ALPHONSUS CHERN

Malavika
Menon

PUBLISHED 4 HOURS AGO

SINGAPORE - An alumnus of Nanyang Technological University (NTU) has gifted his alma mater $1 million to kickstart a new scholarship and bursary fund for final-year students.

Mr Steven Lim, chief executive of RSTN Consulting, gifted the contribution at a ceremony held at the Campus Clubhouse at NTU on Tuesday (April 6).

Professor Ling San, NTU's Deputy President and Provost, accepted it on behalf of the university.

Mr Lim, 53, who graduated from NTU with a Master of Science in Knowledge Management in 2008, co-founded RSTN Consulting in 1997. The company offers business process management and enterprise content management solutions.

As an entrepreneur, Mr Lim decided to launch the scholarship and bursary fund to help deserving students overcome financial obstacles to success.

Mr Lim said: "I want to help these financially disadvantaged students in the final year of their studies so they can focus fully on studying and graduate, without having to juggle work and study at the same time.

"Through this, I hope to nurture a cycle of goodwill. I would like to encourage these students to develop a heart of giving back to society and pay it forward in the future once they are capable of doing so."

The RSTN Bursary Fund will help eight financially disadvantaged Singaporean students per year in the final year of their studies with an annual award of $10,000.

Like the bursary fund, only final year undergraduate students are eligible to receive the RSTN Scholarship.

(From left) NTU's Deputy President and Provost Professor Ling San, RSTN Consulting CEO Steven Lim and NTU's Vice President of University Advancement Lien Siaou-Sze. ST PHOTO: ALPHONSUS CHERN

Every academic year for the next decade, two students who display excellent academic results and extra-curricular records will be selected to receive $10,000.

The Government will match Mr Lim's gift with another $1 million for the NTU General Endowment Fund to support undergraduate and post-graduate education at the university.

Vice President of University Advancement at NTU Ms Lien Siaou-Sze said: "The RSTN Scholarship and Bursary Fund will support bursaries to aid financially disadvantaged students, as well as scholarships to encourage academic excellence.

"We are very proud that whilst Mr Lim has become a successful entrepreneur, he has made tremendous impact in helping the next generation of leaders and his alma mater scale to new heights of excellence."

MORE ON THIS TOPIC

Indonesian tycoon donates \$1 million to needy NTU students on birthday

New NTU endowment fund in honour of late engineering dean kicks off with \$1m donation