

through the looking glass

UNSUNG HEROES

Some start work at the break of dawn, while others patrol by night. They are in labs, studios, halls, canteens and everywhere in between. Their jobs may not be glamorous, but are no less important than others. They clean our environment. They ferry us around campus. They ensure our safety. They share our campus, yet their existence is seldom acknowledged and rarely appreciated. Most eyes pass over them without a second glance. You may not even notice them while they are here. But if they were gone, you will definitely feel their absence.

by TAN ZI JIE
& KUAN JIE WEI

