MORE ABOUT CONFUCIUS INSTITUTE

The Confucius Institute (孔子学院) is a non-profit organisation set up by the National Office for Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language in China (汉办) to enhance the understanding of the Chinese language and culture in various countries and promote friendly relations with them. These Institutes are similar to language promotion institutions established by other countries, such as British Council (UK), Alliance Francaise (France) and Goethe Institute (Germany).
The Confucius Institute is named after the famous thinker, educator and philosopher, whose doctrines are a great influence throughout the world. The first Confucius Institute was set up in Korea in 2004. Since then, more than 20 other institutes have been established in Asia, Africa, Australia, Europe and the USA.

Each Confucius Institute is responsible for carrying out activities to promote the teaching of Chinese language and culture in their country, including:

- Professional training for Chinese teachers
- Formulation of Chinese teaching curriculum/plan
- Co-development of Chinese teaching materials tailored for local region
- Chinese courses, including degree programmes with local universities and institutes
- Tests and examinations leading to Certificate to teach Chinese as a foreign language
- Consulting services on studying in China
- Library services
- Other activities/events to showcase Chinese movies and TV programmes
