Giving to the Graduation Class Gift

Yadul Audihia
School of Materials Science and Engineering, NTU
Class of 2008

I am giving to the 2008 Graduation Class Gift to show my gratitude towards my professors and my support for my alma mater. As a graduate of NTU, I will always be associated with the university. My relationship with NTU doesn’t end with graduation.

Madaline Weng
School of Chemical and Biomedical Engineering, NTU
Class of 2008 (accelerated and completed her studies in 2007)

When I left NTU, I took with me memories of professors who were dedicated to bringing out the best in their students and who were keen for us to excel in our careers. My classmates and I are indebted to them. I hope my contribution to SICE through the Graduation Class Gift will help meet some of its urgent needs, whether these are in the form of teaching fellowships or learning initiatives.

Second-year undergraduate
School of Physical and Mathematical Sciences, NTU

I have two more years to go before I graduate but I pledge to participate in Alumni Giving starting with the Graduation Class Gift. It will be my way of giving back to NTU.

Chrystella Prachap
Third-year undergraduate
School of Humanities and Social Sciences, NTU

At first, I didn’t understand why students were encouraged to give when we already pay tuition fees but when I think of the ‘sacred’ we enjoy, such as overseas work and study stints, competitions and community projects, I decided I should give so my junior too will enjoy a holistic education. Most importantly, this is one way to show appreciation to my professors. We are a family, after all.

Lai Jia Min
Nanyang Business School, NTU
Class of 2008

I used to think that if a university needed money, all it needed to do was to attract a major donation. But now I know that major donors take into account alumni, staff and student giving before deciding whether to make a significant donation. We need to show our support for our own alma mater before we can expect others to do so.

Dear fellow student,

Isn’t it great to know that we are on our way to graduating from university? As we begin to think about caps and gowns, and the careers awaiting us, let’s take a moment to reflect upon our time at Nanyang Technological University and how we may acknowledge all that the university, our professors and alumni have done for us.

Each year, besides gifts from foundations, philanthropists, and NTU staff and alumni, final-year students are approached to give to their alma mater. Their individual gifts make up the Graduation Class Gift.

Now that you are in your final year of study, we are appealing to you to give to the 2008 Graduation Class Gift. This is our opportunity to give to benefit our juniors just as we ourselves had benefited from the cohorts before us.

How much should you give? You decide. At any gift level, your contribution will make a significant difference when pooled with other gifts. (Please refer to the panel below to see what you will receive for gifts of $10, $50 and $75.)

Our relationship with NTU doesn’t end with graduation. As NTU graduates, we will always be associated with our alma mater so let’s give to make our university great!

Thank you for your support.
