Engineering Alumni Raise Funds for Students

The Nanyang Technological University (NTU) School of Civil and Environmental Engineering Alumni (NCEEA) have decided to offer at least 12 bursaries each year from this year onwards, for civil and environmental engineering students.

Since 1999, alumni from Nanyang Technological University's (NTU) School of Civil and Environmental Engineering (CEE) have been raising funds to provide CEE students with bursaries.

This year was no different.

Close to 150 alumni and friends met on the greens of the Warren Golf and Country Club on 30 July 2004 for a fund-raising golf tournament. The golfers raised some $12,000, which NCEEA have decided to put to good use by creating twelve $1,000-bursaries. Among the golfers were the Guests-of-Honour, Dr Ng Eng Hen, Acting Minister for Manpower, and Dr Su Guan Ing, President of NTU.

Says Assoc Prof Lok Tat Seng, CEE’s Sub-Dean (Alumni Affairs), “Catching up with old friends is always a pleasure but doing so while helping our future alumni makes the process even better.”

He adds, “Buoyed by the success of this fund-raising golf tournament, NCEEA will provide at least 12 bursaries each year from this year onwards for civil and environmental engineering students.”
