A Lady who Excels

Assoc Prof Goh Wang Ling is not only the winner of EEE Year 2 Teaching Award but she was also voted by students as the best looking lecturer for 2 years and the best dressed female professor for 2 years.

Amongst other qualities, she is combination of good looks and teaching excellence! In Academic Year 2004/2005, she taught Digital Electronics to a group of about 150 students.

Besides being respected as a good teacher, her students find that she is dedicated, kind, enthusiastic and patient. Her students are grateful for her efforts in helping them to understand an important subject. Looking back, a former student commented:

"I’m currently working in the electronics industry where I need a sound understanding of circuits. Assoc Prof Goh’s course gave me a good foundation for industrial projects."

Another student said: "Digital Electronics has always been tough for me. With her encouragement and patience, my friends and I improved vastly. Eventually, I was able to do well for exams."

Yet another said: "Her teaching has spurred my interest in Digital Electronics and I majored in Electronics in my final year. I’m glad to have her as my teacher."

Her students wait for hours to seek her help with the subject that she is teaching. Many feel that she is the best lecturer and teacher that they have ever had.

Wang Ling believes that it is important to have a good education and she wants her students to enjoy learning. She is always looking for better modes of delivery and applications that can help students to appreciate the subject better and apply the concepts taught in industry."
