

Nanyang Business School Unveils Joint International MBA

NTU Singapore and Vietnam's University of Economics Ho Chi Minh (UEH) are planning to launch a new International Master of Business Administration (IMBA) programme.

The new programme, which would commence in the second half of 2024, aims to deliver a comprehensive business education, leveraging the combined expertise of both universities to equip participants with the skills and knowledge needed to thrive in today's green and tech

Upon meeting the graduation requirements of the programme, students would be awarded the NTU MBA Degree conferred by NTU Singapore. Students will also receive the Certificate of Completion in Business Administration from UEH, acknowledging their successful completion of the programme's curriculum.

The joint Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) between both universities for the programme was signed on 25 July 2023 at UEH by Dean of NTU's College of Business (Nanyang Business School) Professor Christina Soh, and Dean of UEH's School of Management, College of Business, Dr Ngo Quang Huan.

The signing was witnessed by NTU Deputy President and Provost Professor Ling San and UEH President Professor Su Dinh Thanh.
