

THE STRAITS TIMES, WEDNESDAY 1 MAY 2024, PAGE A1 (FRONT PAGE)

Making waves for marine conservation

Using waterproof laminated paper roughened with sandpaper and a pencil, Assistant Professor Kyle Morgan (left) from NTU's Asian School of the Environment and Mr Abel Yeo from S.E.A. Aquarium's education, research and conservation team signed a memorandum of understanding in the Shipwreck Habitat exhibit on April 30, paving the way for future projects to conserve marine biodiversity. The two-year collaboration will focus on climate science and super corals.
ST PHOTO: GAVIN FOO SEE SINGAPORE • A17