The Director-General of Higher Education, Research, and Technology at the Ministry of Education and Culture, Abdul Haris, on Sunday (9/6/2024), explained that the INSTEP scholarship aims to improve the quality of higher education and encourage international collaboration. This also constitutes a part of Indonesia's investment for the future.

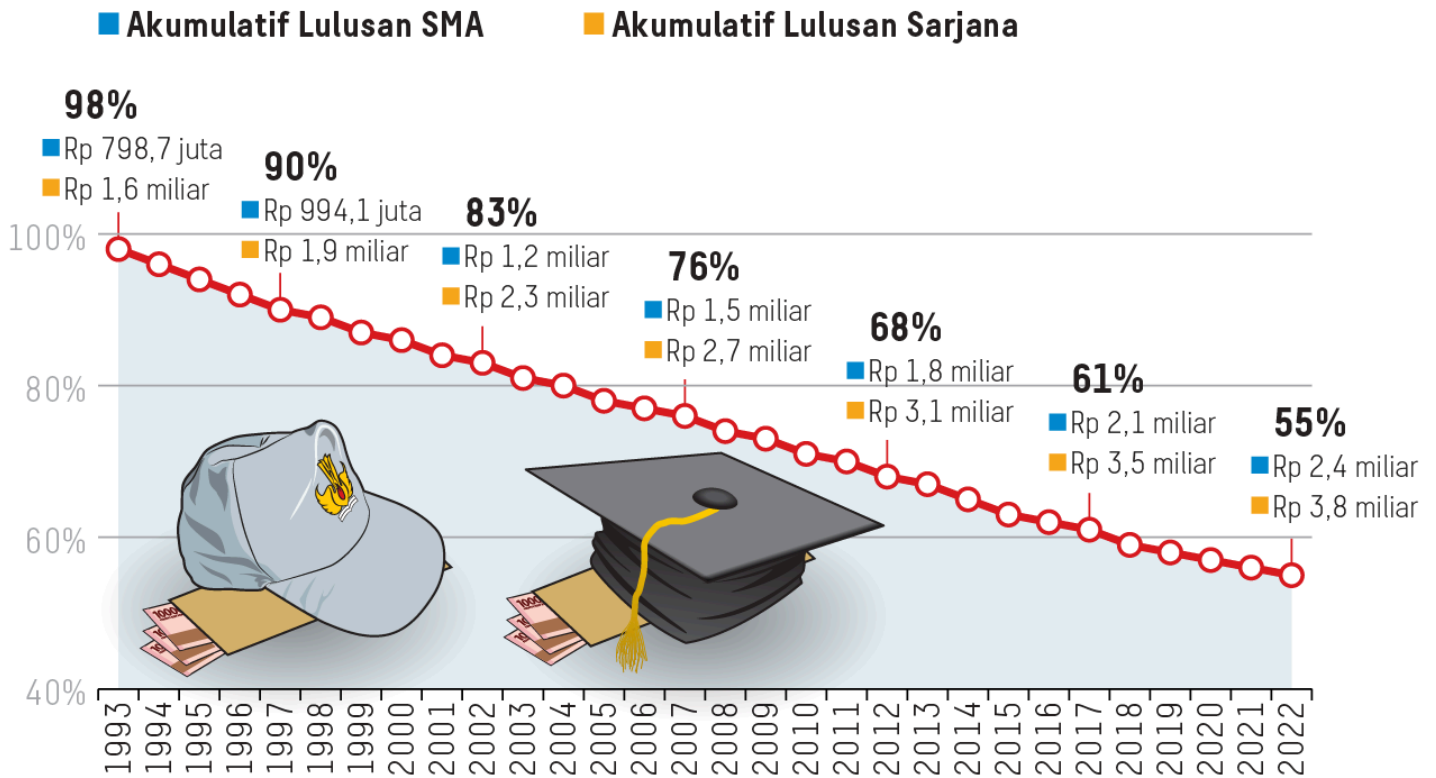

"This program will bridge cultural diversity, encourage innovation, and further strengthen efforts in knowledge transfer and educational collaboration between Indonesia and Singapore," said Haris.

NTU President Ho Teck Hua explained that the INSTEP scholarship is provided to attract the best students from Indonesia. He believes that this program will produce culturally rich graduates between the two countries.

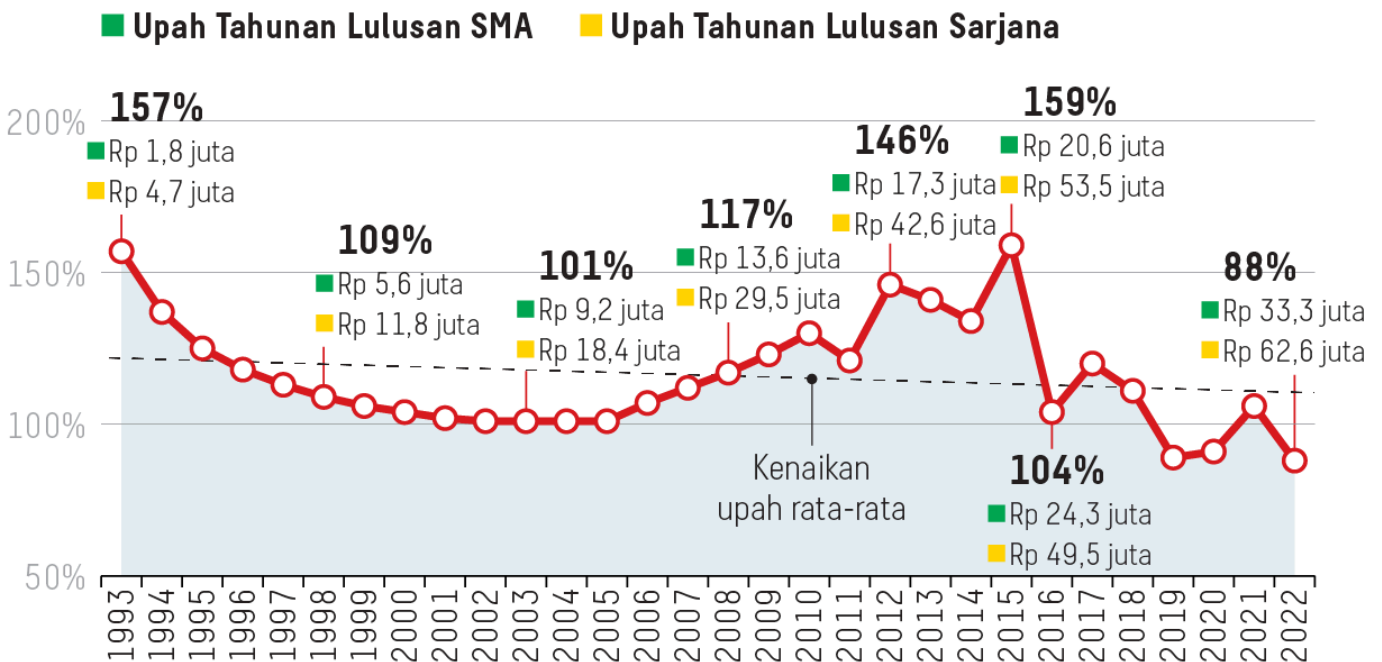

"They will be future ambassadors for closer relations between Indonesia and Singapore," said Hua.

Ranking, NUS is ranked eighth among the world's best universities.

Director of the Master of Science (MSc) Program at NUS Business School, Aaron Gohyang, recently announced that he will provide full scholarships and funding assistance for select high-achieving applicants. The deadline for registration follows the stipulations of each respective master's program.

"The scholarships and funding assistance for this business master's program will open up more opportunities for Indonesian students to receive education in Singapore," said Gohyang.

Gohyang explained that one of the most popular MSc programs among Indonesians is MSc in Sustainable and Green Finance. There is also an MSc in Strategic Analysis and Innovation which focuses on key areas of strategy and innovation.
