

4.1 School of Art, Design and Media

Overview

The NTU School of Art, Design and Media pioneers the education of professionals in the arts, design and media. The School plays a central role in the transformation of Singapore into a regional centre of creativity, and provides students with the knowledge and tools to develop and produce ground-breaking art, design and media. We seek to promote Singapore's creative culture and identity while providing a studio-based education.

The School has attracted faculty members with significant contributions to arts and design education and/or with significant professional experience in the creative industries.

The School currently offers six degree programmes that combine a rigorous Foundation programme in traditional studio disciplines with innovative development in new media. The degree programmes incorporate contemporary art, design and media studies with an emphasis on studio practice. These programmes reflect a breadth of interests relevant both regionally and globally, and are structured to allow the possibility of interdisciplinary studies.
